BANK CLERK SUICIDE IN PRODUCE EXCHANGE INSTITUTION'S VAULT

Charles Wuestefeld, Twenty Years Old, Hides in Closed Strong Room and Sends Bullet Through His Head.

Charles Wuestefeld, a twenty-year-old junior clerk in the Produce Exchange Bank, at No. 12 Broadway, watching the paying-teller shortly after noon to-day, noticed that official scrutinize two checks and then steal a glance in his direction. The boy promptly disappeared, and nearly two hours later was found dead, shut in a dark vault in the basement of the bank, with a bullet wound through his head.

The checks were for $20 each, drawn yesterday on the bank, and Wuestefeld had no account there to meet them. The bank officials will not reveal the names of the persons to whom the boy gave the checks, but it is supposed that there was something about the transaction to make him ashamed.

The other clerks and the tellers recall that he was hovering about the paying teller's compartment all morning, probably hoping that the checks would not appear. When they did, he became panicky and killed himself.

Young Wuestefeld went into the bank when he was thirteen years old as an office boy. By strict attention to business he had worked himself up to a junior clerkship and was to have been promoted to a place in the bookkeeping department on Sept. 1. He was 6 feet 3 inches tall, quite thin and not very strong. Recently he had been complaining of the effects of the excessive heat.

Of Model Habits, Say Parents.

The boy lived with his father, Charles Wuestefeld, a truckman, with a place of business at No. 20 East Seventy-seventh street. The other members of the family were his mother, his elder brother Alfred and two sisters. His parents say that he was a boy of model habits, but sometimes was out late as late as 11 o'clock at night attending the theatre or some party.

They refused to say whether he had been out last night or not. He appeared at the bank today at his usual time and went to work but found time to make frequent trips to the vicinity of the paying teller's cage.

When the fatal check appeared, young Wuestefeld remarked to one of his fellow clerks that he was going to the vault to make an examination of some checks in order to trace a slight error on his books. He showed no signs of agitation, and it was not uncommon for him to make trips to the vault to look up checks about which there was some question.

Had Signed His Own Name.

The paying teller, to whom the two $20 checks were handed in the course of business, was amazed when he saw the name of Charles Wuestefeld signed to them. He knew the junior clerk had no account in the bank. After some hesitation he took the checks to the office of John Wood, the cashier, who happened to be out at luncheon.

By the time Mr. Wood returned young Wuestefeld had been missing nearly an hour. The cashier and the teller talked the matter over and decided to send for the clerk and question him. They learned that he was not at his desk.

Daniel P. Cullen, Jr., another clerk, was called. Cullen said he thought Wuestefeld was in the vault, and was instructed to go after him. In a few minutes Cullen rushed up into the bank with his face white and his eyes popping.

He said he had found the doors of the vault closed, but not locked. Opening the doors, he stepped in and turned on the electric light. Wuestefeld was lying across a book truck on the steel floor, dead.

His right hand, clutching a revolver, was lying across his chest. Blood was trickling from a hole in his temple.

Mr. Wood summoned Frank Dunn, the special policeman of the bank, who hurried to the vault and examined the body. He said the boy had killed himself instantly. After consultation with the bank's officers Dunn notified the Coroner's office and the John street police station.

Reluctantly Told of Checks.

The officers of the bank denied at first that there was any business reason why the clerk should have killed himself. Finally, when closely questioned by Coroner Harburger, Cashier Wood told of the two $20 checks. He insisted that there was nothing else irregular about the boy's relations with the institution.

The young man's sisters are Bertha, a couple of years his senior, and Olga, two years his junior. Both are executed.

ZEPPELIN AIRSHIP, AFTER 12-HOUR FLIGHT, HALTS

Meets With Accident While Watched by Thousands and Forced to Descend.

SAILS OVER GERMANY

Sky Machine Was Making Records on 24-Hour Trial Journey.

OPPENHEIM, Aug. 4.—The Zeppelin airship, owing to a defect of one of the motors, landed on an island in the middle of the Rhine, near here, at 6 o'clock this evening. Up to that hour the airship was making a splendid record after the start from Friedrichshafen at 6:30 o'clock this morning. The intention of Count Zeppelin was to remain in the air twenty-four hours and return to the starting point at 7 A. M. tomorrow.

It is reported that the defective motor will be repaired and that the Zeppelin airship will continue its trip.

MAYENCE, Aug. 4.—Count Zeppelin's big airship on its twenty-four-hour journey from Friedrichshafen, down the Rhine to Mayence, Metz and Stuttgart and return, was sighted from here at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The distance from Friedrichshafen to Mayence is 201 miles. Having left the former place at 6:30 o'clock this morning, he has consequently averaged twenty-nine miles an hour, including manœuvres.

The airship had been under perfect control from the start, and Count Zeppelin was very much pleased with the progress. At various places he had dropped messages declaring the trip a success and saying that he and his party were enjoying a "splendid excursion."

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 4.—Count Zeppelin made a splendid start today in his great airship on the much-heralded twenty-four-hour continuous journey, on the success of which a fortune depends for this morning when the airship was sighted when the balloon was still in the clouds, apparently under perfect control and making fast time. The Count was due here on his return at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The weather was excellent this morning when Count Zeppelin got the motors of his sky machine going and emerged from the floating dock on the lake shore here.

The airship arose immediately from the waters of the lake to a height.

SANFORD'S HORSE WINS THE HURON HANDICAP AT SPA MEETING

Handicap Race Goes to Si John Johnson at Odds of 3 to 1.

HIGH RANGE A VICTOR

Woodcraft Beats Out Adriuch and Adriana in Seneca Selling Stakes.

BY VINCENT TREANOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EVENING WORLD: SARATOGA RACE TRACK, AUG. 4.—The most popular victory of the meeting was won here this afternoon by Col. Sanford's Sir John Johnson in the Huron Handicap. The colt bearing the colors of that pillar of the turf, who races simply for the sport's sake, were carried in the front by Sir John Johnson every step of the way. When he landed in a thrilling stretch drive with Royal Tourist the crowd arose as one and cheered long and loud.

So continuous was the ovation that Mr. Sanford, who occupied his box in the grand stand, had to arise and doff his hat in recognition. The Whitney pair were an odd choice in the race, and it was feared that only an accident could beat them. Sweet, however, put up a masterly ride and kept the colt going under a vigorous application of the whip.

Royal Tourist challenged gamely at the head of the stretch, but he wasn't quite good enough to get the Sanford colt. Delirium was third, Col. Sanford nearly won the fifth race, too, with Adriuch. She led into the stretch only to be overtaken by the favorite, Woodcraft, who won going away. Sweet rode Woodcraft, this making his third victory for the day. He rode Pina and Needles and Sir John Johnson.

Rumors Still Afloat. The rumor that the Empire Association's meet would be run here as a continuation of the present meeting after all amounts to nothing. According to Mr. Butler, a move toward the city was considered. In fact, Mr. Butler would prefer to run his meeting on the home course at Yorkers. The crowd at the track today was small and the oral layers on the lawn seemed disgraced in carrying on their business.

There was a grand new report of circulation that after today the bid would go down with a bang on the gambling houses. Only time can prove the truth of this.

Mediant Beats Madden Pair.

Mediant won the opening event from a very good field, leading practically all the way and winning easily at the end in 1:06, the fastest time of the meeting. The Madden pair were off in a tangle and never could get into the race. Precursor followed the light-footed Mediant all the way, tiring right at the end, to be beaten for the place by the rest never had a look in.

Pins and Needles Wins.

Dugan on Pancy and Lank on Polly Watts had the second race between them turning into the stretch. Pancy led and won easily at the end in 1:06, the fastest time of the meeting. The Madden pair were off in a tangle and never could get into the race. Precursor followed the light-footed Mediant all the way, tiring right at the end, to be beaten for the place by the rest never had a look in.

Talent Puzzled in Third.

The third race presented a fine puzzle for the talent. High Range was the favorite and was played, and the Gardner and Cottoy went off in a good lead in the stretch. Cottoy might have won, but she wore out, as usual, in the stretch. When the Gardner and Cottoy closed like a streak, but just failed to get up. High Range, running straight and true under Sullivan, kept in front to the end. The Gardner ran back to his last good race, and finishing strong along the rail got up to be second.

PHILLIES LUNCH EATS IN 7TH INNING AND TRIM CUBS.

(Special to The Evening World.) PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—By bunching their hits in the seventh inning in a fast game the Phillies and Cubs the Phillies scored out the Chicago bunch today by a score of 4 to 2. The Cubs started in like winners and began scoring early. In the second a walk and a sacrifice and a triple by Howard scored one. In the fourth the Cubs again scored a run on a single and a triple by Tinker.

In this inning, however, the Phillies started scoring. Knoxe doubled and scored on a single by Tins. There was no further scoring until the seventh inning, when the Phillies went ahead and were never headed.

Magie started with a single to left field. Brunsfield was walked. Osborne beat out a third. Single, filling the bases. Doolittle doubled over third base, clearing the bases. The game was marked with sensational playing in which Knoxe, Doolittle, Howard and Philadelphia and Tinker, Evans and Chance for Chicago excelled.

ST. LOUIS 0, BROOKLYN 2

SCORE BY INNINGS:
St. Louis 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0

(Special to The Evening World.) WASHINGTON PARK, BROOKLYN, Aug. 4.—The Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals came together again this afternoon in the second game of their four-game series. The day was entirely too hot for baseball, and as a consequence there was only a fair crowd of spectators on hand. Winfield was the pitcher for the visiting team. McClellan thought Howard looked good and he was given the job.

First Inning.—Shaw began hostilities by slamming the ball to center for a bag. Charles was a hot grounder to Lewis, who threw to Hummel, forcing Shaw, and on Hummel's fast throw to Jordan, Charles was a speedy chuck to Jordan. NO RUNS.

Burch was belted on his high jump by Lewis and a grounder to Hummel banged 105 for the first time in setting the ball to Jordan. Lewis and Jordan handled Reilly's well. NO RUNS.

Konetchy's grass cutter was taken care of by Lewis and Jordan. Delehan's post-one to Hummel was a fly ball to Lewis and Jordan handled Reilly's well. NO RUNS.

Second Inning.—Ludwig drove out a long fly which Burch nabbed. Gilbert was disposed of by Lewis and Jordan. Raymound was thrown out by Sheshan. NO RUNS.

Third Inning.—Ludwig drove out a long fly which Burch nabbed. Gilbert was disposed of by Lewis and Jordan. Raymound was thrown out by Sheshan. NO RUNS.

Fourth Inning.—Shaw was called out by Klem on a horrible drive. Jordan got the ball.
